

ABSTRACT

The present invention relates to granules comprising a core and a coating, wherein the core comprises an active compound and the coating comprises a wax composition with a wide molecular weight distribution.